DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This small log house consisted of only one room down and one up and was probably no more than one and a half stories in height, according to Florence Hallman. There were no additions to it. It was heated by wood stoves, and had windows with double hung sashes containing 6/6 panes.

Behind the house stood outbuildings which included a meat house and cow shed.

According to Mrs. Hallman, all the log houses at Big Woods were more or less alike, so see the descriptions of the Fred Hamilton and Louis Brown houses which are still standing, for further details.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

For discussion of the significance of the construction and significance of this house, see the inventory forms of the Fred Hamilton and Louis Brown houses in Big Woods, which this house closely resembled, according to Florence Hallman, who was born and raised in the Big Woods community.

Research of deeds did not locate the deed by which Tom Crumpton purchased this land. In fact, the track was soon lost in 1946 when the land was acquired by Montgomery County for failure to pay taxes. In 1947, it was conveyed to Alice Laura Tibbs (deed 1068/225), and there was no reference to earlier owners. Tom Crumpton was not listed in any of the grantee/grantor indexes. Thus, the identity of the landowning family is known only through oral informants, and the date of their purchase can only be estimated. Since Mrs. Florence Hallman was young in the early 1900s and remembers the Crumpton dwelling as an old house at that time, it is probable that the house was contemporary to the Lewis Brown house and other log houses of the 1870s or 1880s.
